Virtual Reality Headset Safety Information

Use of the virtual reality headset is at your own risk. Please review the safety guidelines below before using a virtual reality (VR) headset:

Take frequent breaks while using a VR headset. If you experience nausea, discomfort, eye strain or disorientation, discontinue use immediately.

The use of VR headsets by children is up to the individual discretion of parents or guardians. VR headsets are not for use by children without adult supervision.

Prior to using a VR headset, ensure that a safe playing area has been cleared for use while operating the headset.

Do not use a VR headset while driving, walking or in any way that distracts you from real-world situations and prevents you from obeying traffic or safety regulations. Do not drive or operate heavy machinery after using a VR headset if you feel impaired or disoriented.

If you have had or could be prone to seizures, and/or any other medical conditions, consult a doctor before using a VR headset.
